

One

by Jackie Cecola

simplify, supplicate, surrender and we are shedding the illusion of anything besides abundance teach me to see differently and i will cherish the timeless vision of acceptance allow the reciprocity of breath necessarily bountiful and i will begin the rejuvenate the places where creativity of complete inevitability just give me fellows to walk with, to speak with to love with and in these moments of still enthusiasm we will know the spirit that dances through each of us, in the heart of us watching joy bubble up real and viscous through cracks and fissures previously the domain of doubting, now reinvigorated and energized this is absolute connection in form newly, eternal, becoming i am the act of moving to the there that is here and now, and now into the still from which all impetus rises the beacon of beckoning creativity ask me where law ends and spark begins, i will give you human injecting the ether with equal parts grace and intention show me again, in silent approval or raucous agreement i have found divine support here manifested strong, complete and experienced the reality calls itself 'friend' and the wholeness expands to envelop the all in all, once thought divided but in this moment of eternal truth, we are added, multiplied and shared of the same energy the singular source that calls itself 'myself'

one